main events and the most important facts and problematics concerning the nuclear themes which affect the main theme of the course: England's History and its relation with the remaining medieval west.

- Develop critical thinking on the questions addressed
- Promote the capacity to explain orally and to write on complex subject matters and problems,
- promote the capacity of arguing one's own ideas in a public forum, academically.

16. Competências gerais do grau/General skills of the degree: a); b); c); d) ;e); f)

17. Competências específicas do curso/Specific Course skills: Não aplicável./Not applicable

18. Requisitos de frequência/Attendance requirements: Students will be selected after an interview with the responsible for the course. Good mastery of English at the level of oral and written comprehension is a pre-requisite. The students written work may be given in English or Portuguese, but the teaching is done in English.

Students need to be aware that the level of autonomous work will be high and that the expectations are that students will be responsible for a considerable part of their work, in the Library and with Published Sources, even if always under the close supervision of the tutor(s).

19. Conteúdo da unidade curricular/Syllabus (máx. 200 palavras):

This course will cover the British History and its relation with the Continent, from the 9th to the 15th centuries, and will be taught thematically.

Its syllabus will vary from year to year, according to the Oxford team which will be teaching each of the years, and the specific essay topics chosen for the students.

It will nonetheless always cover a wide range of topics (ideally 6 per year), either chronological or thematic, from politics to economy and society, from religion to science and diplomatic relations.

20. Bibliografia recomendada/Recommended reading: (máx. 5 títulos. Por ordem decrescente de data de edição.)

1. The essay topics and bibliography, as well as the bibliography for each of the lectures and workshops will be provided to the students in the beginning of the semester. They may vary each year.

21. Métodos de ensino/Teaching Methods: This UC will be taught in accordance with the "Oxford University tutorial model", adapted to the Portuguese reality. Each semester, the students will attend, twice per semestre, two full day seminars, taught by a team of senior Oxford teachers (theoretical lectures followed by workshops with documents). There will also be 8 more one-hour lectures, taught by a team of English and Portuguese Oxford-trained tutors, who will also accompany the written and oral work of the students for the remaining practical part of the course. The remaining sessions will be tutorial-like sessions in which the essays written by the students will be corrected, debated and discussed in groups of 3-5 students and a tutor. The essay topics and bibliography, as well as the bibliography for each of the lectures and workshops will be provided to the students in the beginning of the semestre.

22. Métodos de avaliação/Assessment methods: The assessment will be 100% based on autonomous work presented by the students every other week and debated with the tutors in presential sessions of up to 5 students per session of 2 hours. Each student will need to write 6 essays of up to 10 pages per semestre, on special topics. Attendance to the 4 days of intensive lectures taught by the team of teachers from Oxford University and to the regular one hour lectures taught by the English-Portuguese IEM team (schedule to be announced in the beginning of the semestre) is compulsory and absence from them will impose a 50% devaluation in the students final marks. Essays may be written in English and/or Portuguese.

23. Língua de ensino/Teaching language: English
